HAS HIS VOICE

Colonel L. H. Tipton Sounds an Unintentional Fire Alarm

The porter at the Central Hotel has a voice noted for volume and sonority, and when he makes his calls announcing the departure of the various trains in order that the traveling guests may be informed of the fact, he gives the notification in a tone similar to that of a fog horn or the turning in of a fire alarm.

Last evening he was in extra voice and when he sounded, "All out for the C. and O. West-bound train," it appeared as though the earth was trembling from the vibration.

Tinkle, tinkle sounded the long distance phone as the handsome hello girl at Ripley called up this end of the line.

"Hello," responds the ever attentive Miss Anna Daugherty, the most obliging and popular lady hotel clerk and hello girl between Pittsburgh and New Orleans.

"Where's the fire?" interrogates the sweet voice at the Ripley end of the phone.

"What do you mean? What fire have you reference to?" is the solicitous reply.

"I surely heard the alarm of fire and the bells ringing up your way. I was fearful the hotel was afire. What was the cause of the commotion?"

"Pshaw, Nell, that was the porter calling the trains!"

"Goodness me! I declare, Anna, it sounded like a ten-blow fire alarm. I am glad, for I was fearful something dreadful was happening. So-so, good-bye."

It's an easy thing to say, And say it good and strong, And say it pretty frequent, Push Rocky Mountain Tea along.

J. Jas. Wood & Son.

Mrs. Fennell and daughter, Mrs. Homer Safford, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Means, left Monday for Chicago, from which point they leave about the 15th with friends to spend the rest of the winter in Florida and Cuba.

ANOTHER WRECK

Couple of C. and O. Freight Cars Together Here Last Night

Last night at 8 o'clock as a C. and O. freight train was about to pass onto the viaduct in the West End, and just at a point where the bridge crosses Short street, a shoe became detached from a brakebeam and fell into the switch, derailing five cars.

Before the train could be brought to a standstill it had passed far out on the viaduct, smashing and breaking sixty-five ties and cross-beams.

Train 99, Westbound, was standing on the viaduct at the time and was considerably damaged.

The numbers of the wrecked cars were 876, 9249, 74,620, 58,283, three of which are total wrecks.

The wrecking crew was shortly on the spot and by 12:45 this morning the West track was cleared and the East track will be ready for traffic in several hours.

Fortunately no one was injured in the alightest manner, the loss being only a monetary one, which will be quite heavy.

INSTALLATION SERVICES

The Knights of St. John Installed New Officers Last Night

Installation night is always looked forward to by the members of Commandery 89, Knights of St. John, as one evening of the year when all else will be laid aside and good cheer and true good fellowship will be the only thought in the minds of those attending or taking part in the exercises.

That last night, the occasion of the eighteenth annual installation, was no exception, would not be told to the most casual observer could he only looked in for a moment on the scene at the Knights' Hall in Second street.

At the call "fall in" the members formed a line in front of the officers' stand, occupied by General George Schroeder and Captain M. A. Swift.

Each of those elected to hold an office during the year was then called forward and in a clear, impressive manner Captain Swift called their attention to their respective duties and administered the pledge.

After these exercises all were invited to be seated at the table which had been prepared, and it was here alongside the smiling ladies that the knights were happiest.

Between courses several short speeches were made, and the applause and laughter evidenced the enjoyment of all.

It was about midnight when good night was spoken and homeward was the word.
